WATERTOWN, Mass.--(BUSINESS WIRE)--Neumora Therapeutics, Inc. (Neumora), a clinical-stage biopharmaceutical company redefining neuroscience drug development, today announced the appointment of Henry Gosebruch as president and chief executive officer and a member of the Company's board. Co-founder Paul L. Berns, chief executive officer and chairman, will transition to the role of Executive Chairman and will continue to chair the board.

"I am extremely proud of the Neumora team's unwavering commitment to patients and progress to date, which has enabled us to build a company at scale that I believe is poised to become the leader in brain health," said Paul L. Berns, co-founder and executive chairman of Neumora. "Looking forward, I am optimistic about what's to come given our strong business fundamentals and robust pipeline including our lead program entering Phase 3 development. This momentum allowed us to attract a leader like Henry, who is an incredibly talented biopharma executive, bringing a wealth of strategic and operating expertise. I'm pleased that he has joined the Neumora team in our mission to bring forward the next generation of novel therapies for patients suffering from CNS disorders. I have known Henry for over a decade, and I look forward to working with him and continuing to contribute to Neumora's growth in my new role as executive chairman."

Mr. Gosebruch is a seasoned pharmaceutical executive with extensive strategy, transaction, and operating experience. Most recently, Mr. Gosebruch served as executive vice president and chief strategy officer at AbbVie, Inc.
